His British pride would never stoop to let the wife of his besom become a pauper. He paid $1.25 a week to the infirmary people to take care of her. With a faithfulness which cannot be overpraised he paid that sum week after week, year after year, for seven years. As long as he had a strong right arm his beloved wife should not suffer. Well, at the end of seven years he found out his wife had died in a few days after he had put her in the establishment and to be heard in my own defense.
